Quality Systems, Inc. Board of Directors Elects Jeffrey H. Margolis as Chairman of Board

Succeeds Founder Sheldon Razin Who Will Continue to Serve as Chairman Emeritus

IRVINE, Calif.--(BUSINESS WIRE)-- Quality Systems, Inc. (NASDAQ: QSII), announced today the election of Jeffrey H. Margolis as the independent chairman of the board of directors, effective today. Margolis succeeds Sheldon Razin, 77, founder, who has served as the chairman of the board since the Company's inception in 1974. Concurrently, the board elected Craig A. Barbarosh to serve as vice chairman.

Following his decision to retire as chairman, Razin will continue to serve on the board as chairman emeritus. Since founding Quality Systems more than 40 years ago, Razin has led the Company to its industry leadership position in the continually evolving healthcare information technology sector, with an installed user base that spans 85,000 providers across 4,000 clients.

"I founded this Company on a desk in my garage when I had a vision for applying technology that would automate healthcare. It gives me a great sense of pride to see how Quality Systems has grown from an entrepreneurial startup to one of the leading providers of healthcare IT in the ambulatory provider space," Razin noted.

"It is an appropriate time for me to now pass the board leadership reins to a seasoned leader who possesses significant healthcare technology experience. With Jeff's guidance and the support of the entire board, the management team will continue to pave the way for our clients and employees as the industry enters a new phase of healthcare technology and the delivery of value-based care," Razin said.

"It is an honor to follow Shelly Razin in the role of chairman of the board. The Company has a deep and fond appreciation for his decades of leadership. Beyond the opportunity to continue working with him as ongoing board member, I admire his accomplishments as an inspirational founder and look forward to garnering his wisdom as chairman emeritus," Margolis explained.

"The entire board is genuinely excited by the leadership capabilities of QSI's CEO, Rusty Frantz, and I believe that he and his dedicated team will deliver innovative healthcare information technology and service solutions that will unlock significant value for both customers and investors," Margolis concluded.

Margolis, 52, brings more than 25 years of executive and board leadership in the healthcare industry to the chairman role at Quality Systems. Margolis has served as an independent director of the Quality Systems Board since 2014 and is a member of the Transaction Committee. He serves as the chairman and chief executive officer of Welltok, Inc., a healthcare consumer platform-as-a-service company, which solves challenges for health plans and other population health managers. He is founder and chairman emeritus of TriZetto Corporation, a healthcare enterprise software provider acquired by Cognizant Technology Solutions Corp. in late 2014. In addition, Margolis serves on a number of other for-profit and not-for-profit boards in the healthcare and technology sectors.
