Quality Systems, Inc. Appoints Chief Financial Officer

IRVINE, Calif.--(BUSINESS WIRE)-- Quality Systems, Inc. (NASDAQ:QSII) announced today the appointment of James R. "Jamie" Arnold, Jr. to the post of chief financial officer, effective March 1, 2016.

Arnold, with more than three decades of finance and software technology experience, will oversee all financial-related functions of the Company and its NextGen Healthcare subsidiary. He assumes the role from John K. Stumpf, who has been serving as interim chief financial officer since March 2015.

Most recently, from June 2010 to May 2015, Arnold served as chief financial officer and executive board member at Kofax Ltd., an Irvine, Calif. based software company, where he was responsible for finance, accounting, IT, real estate, treasury, audit, tax and investor relations. During this period, Arnold was instrumental in the completion and integration of six acquisitions, disposition of the hardware distribution business and oversaw the company's U.S. initial public offering and the company's transition from a listing on the London Stock Exchange. As a key member of management, Arnold participated in and facilitated the strategic process that resulted in the sale of its enterprise software division, focused on integration and transition matters.

From 2004 to 2009, Arnold was senior vice president at Nuance Communications, Inc., a Burlington, Mass.-based publicly traded software company. He also was chief financial officer from 2004 to 2008 and during this time, Nuance acquired 17 companies and completed several debt and secondary stock offerings. From 2008 to 2009, Arnold aided with the integration of an acquisition.

Arnold also held other senior-level finance positions at a range of publicly traded technology companies, including vice president, corporate controller at Cadence Design Systems, Inc., chief financial officer at Informix Software, Inc. and, corporate controller at Centura Software Corporation. Arnold began his career at PriceWaterhouse LLP, where he provided consulting and auditing services to companies across diverse industries.

Arnold served as a board member and chair of the Audit Committee at Selectica, Inc. from 2003 to 2010. In 2010, he served as co-chairman of the board.

"We welcome Jamie to the Company. He brings a wealth of public company experience to QSI/NextGen, and the broad knowledge he gained while working at various technology and software companies. We look forward to the contributions Jamie will make in his new role, further solidifying the management team as we prepare our clients for the sea-change occurring within the healthcare information technology landscape. We also want to thank John Stumpf, our corporate controller and treasurer, for his efforts and dedication as he ably filled the CFO role on an interim basis while we conducted a nationwide search. John will remain the Company's principal accounting officer," explained Rusty Frantz, president and chief executive officer.

Arnold said of his new role: "This is an exciting time to be part of the leadership team at Quality Systems and to have the chance to drive change as the Company pursues a new strategic direction and vision under the leadership of Rusty Frantz."

Arnold, 59, holds a Bachelor of Business Administration in Finance from Delta State University in Cleveland, Miss. and a Master's degree in Business Administration from Loyola University in New Orleans, La.
